

Perspectives on Privacy: Harriet P. Pearson, Chief Privacy Officer, IBM Corp.

Despite a lull in the national economy, the drive to an information driven society continues. As Chief Privacy Officer of the largest technology and services company in the world, Ms. Pearson will share her views on the importance of privacy at every level of society in an increasingly networked world. Perspectives offered by Ms. Pearson, gleaned from her long standing involvement with the issue of privacy on the policy, industry and technological fronts, will include future trends expected to unfold over the next year, lessons learned from her own industry and corporate experiences, and the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead for all of us.
